VENUE

The conference will be held inside the campus of the Universitat Politècnica de València in Valencia, Spain.

The UPV is a public, dynamic and innovative institute that is dedicated to research and teaching. It maintains strong bonds with its social environment and a strong presence abroad. Currently, its university community consists of over 42,000 people. Of these, nearly 37,800 are students, 2600 are members of the teaching and research staff and 1700 are administrative and services personnel.

The UPV is made up of 10 schools, 3 faculties and 2 higher polytechnic schools. The University's research institutes are highly valued centres devoted to either artistic, technical and/or scientific research. One of them, the Institute of Telecommunications and Multimedia Applications (iTEAM) is a research centre integrated in the Polytechnic City of Innovation, the new science park located at the UPV.

The iTEAM performs its research and development (R&D) activities in the field of Information Society Technologies (IST). It is made up of 8 research groups recognized by UPV, gathering more than 100 researchers and covering 5 scientific areas related to telecommunication engineering. One of the groups is the Mobile Communications Group (MCG), which is composed of about 30 professors and researchers working on three different fields related to the area of wireless communications: "Body Wireless Communications", led by Prof. Narcis Cardona, "Wireless Technologies", led by Dr. Jose Monserrat, and "Broadcast Technologies", led by Dr. David Gómez-Barquero.

ABOUT VALENCIA

Valencia is a nice and modern city on the shore of the Mediterranean Sea, that combines history, tradition and modernity in an unusual way. Its architecture dates from the first century B.C. to the most futuristic, 21st century design. Just 15 minutes away from the centre of Valencia, you'll find the beaches of Las Arenas, Malvarrosa and El Cabañal – Blue Flag beaches that have been awarded certifications such as the Q for Tourist Quality. The city boasts a wide-ranging environmental offer due to its proximity to the Albufera nature reserve and the green lung, located in the old Turia riverbed which crosses the city centre from east to west. Early June is the perfect time to host an event in Valencia because the temperatures are warm, not too high, and it is not a rainy season.

Valencia's Albufera Natural Park is home to the largest lake in Spain and one of the most important wetland areas in the Iberian Peninsula. It is a place of great ecological interest with rare species of wading birds and a rich variety of wildlife.

The City of Arts and Sciences is a scientific and cultural leisure complex which can be enjoyed with family or friends, covering around two kilometres of the former riverbed of the River Turia.

Paella is Valencia's most international dish and Albufera Natural Park is the true home of paella. Another recipes from Valencia that include rice are baked rice, rice with seafood, duck, lobster, wild mushrooms or black rice. Besides, in Valencia you can taste the Horchata (a drink made of chufa, a typical tuber of the Valencia region) or the Valencia's water (a cocktail based on cava or champagne, orange juice, vodka and gin).
